CLAIMS

Summary

Claim 19 is the independent claim under consideration in this Office Action.

Claims 20-23 and 27-31 are the dependent claims under consideration in this Office Action.

Claims 24 and 25 have been withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 U.S.C. § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 20-23, 28 and 29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Referring to the above noted claims, the scope is unclear in these claims since they do not clearly further include positive manipulative steps for the process. They denote or present further structural limitations or specify further elements involved in the resulting product.

Referring to claim 22, the words "performed via fiber technology" are unclear. It is unclear what positive method steps are involved in "fixing" by "fiberizing".

Claim Rejections - 35 U.S.C. § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) The invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 19-23, 26 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Erth et al. (DE10252671).

Erth et al. teach a process for producing a fibrous laminate. Erth et al. teach the method as including the steps of providing stacked layers of carbon fiber reinforced plies or bands 7a. These stacked layers are then sewn by forming sewing regions comprising lines for connecting the layers one to another. The layers being placed one below the other and having fibers oriented in preferred directions. A cutter 51 is provided for cutting in selected steps for contouring and forming a three dimensional shape to the laminate. The cutter is shaped and is sized such that the layers not being engaged by the head are thus protected by not being within the contact area of the head.

Claims 19-23, 26 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Palmer (6,187,411).

Palmer teaches a process for producing a fibrous laminate. Palmer teaches the method as including the steps of providing strategically stacked layers of glass fiber reinforced panels. These stacked layers are then sewn by forming sewing regions comprising lines 24 for connecting the layers one to another. The layers being placed one below the other and having fibers oriented in preferred directions (figure 3, for example). Palmer teaches contouring the panels (column 5, line 41).

Claims 19-23, 26 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Kozel (5,480,399).

Kozel teaches a process for producing a fibrous laminate. Kozel teaches the method for forming an impeller as including the steps of providing stacked layers of glass fiber reinforced layers or laminae 64. These stacked layers are then sewn by forming sewing regions comprising lines 72 for connecting the layers one to another. The layers being placed one below the other and having fibers oriented in preferred directions (figure 4, for example). A numerically controlled five axis machining apparatus 110 is provided for cutting in selected steps for contouring and forming a three dimensional impeller shape to the laminate (figures 8 and 9). The cutter is shaped and is sized such that the layers not being engaged by the head are thus protected by not being within the contact area of the head.

ALLOWABLE SUBJECT MATTER

Claims 28 and 29 would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection under 35 U.S.C. § 112.

Claims 27 and 30 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

PERTINENT CITATIONS

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Champenois et al. Veas et al. Bouillon, Hankel, Benoit et al. Prevorsek et al. and Blakeley et al. illustrate multilayer laminates including multiple layers of fibrous materials which are either sewn or fastened in another manner layer to layer.
